[THE BOROUGH]

[In HEADINGTON Hundred]

Before 1066 OXFORD paid to the King £20 a year and 6 sesters of honey for tolls, tribute and all other customary dues; and to Earl Algar £10, in addition to the mill which he had within the City.

OXF B2

When the King went on a [military] expedition, 20 burgesses went with him for all the others; or they gave £20 to the King, that all might be free.

[Oxford]

OXF B3

Now OXFORD pays £60 at face value, at 20 [pence] to the {ora}.

OXF B4

In this town, within and without the wall, are 243 houses which pay tax; apart from them, there are 500 houses less 22 so derelict and destroyed that they cannot pay tax.

[Oxford]

OXF B5

The King has 20 Wall-messuages which were Earl Algar's before 1066, and which paid 14s less 2d then and now. He has 1 messuage which pays 6d and belongs to Shipton[-under-Wychwood]; another at 4d which belongs to Bloxham; a third which pays 30d and belongs to [Princes] Risborough; and 2 others at 4d which belong to Twyford in Buckinghamshire; one of them is unoccupied.

The reason that they are called Wall-messuages is that if there is need and if the King commands, they repair the wall.

[Oxford]

OXF B6

To the lands which Earl Aubrey held belong 1 church and 3 messuages; two of them lie [with the lands of] St Mary's Church and pay 28d; the third lies with Burford [lands and] pays 5s.

WORCESTERSHIRE

List 1

[C] [Worcestershire customs]

WOR C1

[In `FISHBOROUGH' Hundred]

In the City of WORCESTER King Edward had this customary due: whenever the coinage was changed each moneyer gave 20s at London for receiving the dies for the coinage. Whenever the County paid tax the city settled for 15 hides. Also from this city the King used to have £10 himself and Earl Edwin £8. The King received no other customary due from it except for the dues on the houses as each was liable.

WOR C2

Now King William has in lordship both the King's part and the Earl's part. For these the sheriff [of Worcestershire] pays £23 5s by weight from the city, and from the King's lordship manors he pays £123 4s by weight. From the County he pays £17 by weight. He pays a further £10 of pence at 20 to the {ora}, or a Norwegian hawk, and a further 100s at face value to the Queen and 20s at 20 [pence] to the {ora} for a packhorse. These £17 by weight and £16 at face value are from the pleas of the County and from the Hundreds, and if he does not receive them from there he pays from his own resources.

[Worcester]

WOR C3

In the County itself there are 12 Hundreds; 7 of them are exempt, as the Shire states, so that the sheriff [of Worcestershire] has nothing in them and therefore, as he states, he loses much in revenue.
[Worcester]

WOR C4

In this County if anyone has knowingly broken the peace which the King has given with his hand, he is judged an outlaw. If anyone has knowingly broken the King's peace which the sheriff gives, he will be fined 100s. A man who has committed highway robbery is fined 100s; a man who has committed house-breaking, 100s; a man who has committed rape pays no penalty other than corporal punishment. The King has these forfeitures from this County, with the exception of the land of St Peter's, Westminster, to which King Edward granted whatever [rights] he had there, as the County states.
[Worcester]

WOR C5

Whenever the King marches against the enemy, if anyone when called up by his proclamation has stayed behind, if he is a free man so that he has full jurisdiction and can go with his land where he would, he is at the King's mercy with all his land. But if a free man of any other lord has stayed away from the enemy and his lord has taken another man in his place, the man who was [first] called up will pay a 40s fine to his lord. But if no one at all has gone in his place, he will give 40s himself to his lord, and his lord will pay a fine of as many shillings to the King.

Five thanes of Earl Edwin held these lands: Erngeat [son of Grim], Alwin, Bricfred, Frani [son of Erngeat], Alwold [son of Erngeat]; they could not withdraw from the lord of the manor. Now four men-at-arms hold these lands from Urso the sheriff: Roger, 3 1/2 hides; William, 2 1/2 hides; Walter, 2 hides and 3 virgates; Alfred [of Marlborough], 3 hides. In these lands, in lordship 5 1/2 ploughs;
1 riding man and 29 smallholders who have 11 1/2 ploughs.
2 slaves; 6 ploughmen; 1 more plough would be possible.
In `WILLINGWICK' and CHADWICH are 3 leagues of woodland, but the King has put them in the Forest. In Droitwich
1 salt-house at 10s.
In total, value before 1066 £6 13s; now 100s, in total.

[In 'CRESSLOW' Hundred]

King William holds KIDDERMINSTER in lordship, with 16 outliers:

WANNERTON, TRIMPLEY, HURCOTT, FRANCHE, another [estate called] FRANCHE,

{BRISTITUNE}, HABBERLEY, {FASTOCHESFELDE}, WRIBBENHALL, RIBBESFORD, another [estate called] RIBBESFORD, SUTTON, OLDINGTON, MITTON, {TEULESBERGE}, {SUDUUALE}. In these lands, including the manor, 20 hides.

The whole of this manor was waste. In lordship 1 plough;

20 villagers and 30 smallholders with 18 ploughs; a further

20 more ploughs possible. 2 male and 4 female slaves.

2 mills at 16s; 2 salt-houses at 30s; a fishery at 100d; woodland at 4 leagues.

In this manor the reeve holds the land of one riding man; he has 1 plough and a mill at 5 {orae}.

To this manor belongs 1 house in Droitwich and another in Worcester which pay 10d.

The whole manor paid £14 in revenue before 1066; now it pays £10 4s by weight.

The King has placed the woodland of this manor in the Forest.

Of this manor's land William holds 1 hide and the land of one riding man. He has 1 villager and 8 smallholders who have 4 1/2 ploughs. Value 11s.

Also of this land Aiulf <of Wolverton> holds 1 virgate. 1 plough and 2 slaves there.

[In `OSWALDSLOW' Hundred]

St Mary's Church of Worcester has one Hundred, which is called `OSWALDSLOW', in which lie 300 hides. By an arrangement of ancient times the Bishop of this church has from them all the payments of the Jurisdications, all customary dues there which belong to the supplies of the household, both the King's service and his own, so that no sheriff can have any suit there, neither in any plea nor in any other case whatever.

The whole County confirms this. The said 300 hides were [part] of the lordship itself of the church, and if any [part] of them was allotted or leased to any man, in whatever manner, to serve the Bishop therefrom, the man who held such land leased to him, could not keep back from it any customary due at all for himself, except through the Bishop, nor keep the land except until the completion of the time arranged between them; nor could he turn elsewhere with this land.

23 Land of William son of Ansculf

WOR 23,1
In 'CAME' Hundred
William son of Ansculf holds SELLY [Oak] from the King, and Wibert from him. Wulfwin held it. One outlier, BARTLEY [Green], belongs there. In total, 4 hides. [***]. In lordship
1/2 plough;
2 villagers and 9 smallholders with 4 ploughs.
A wood 1 league long.
Value before 1066, 100s; now 60s.
Wulfwin bought this manor before 1066 from the Bishop of Chester, for the lives of three men. When he was ailing and had come to the end of his life, he summoned his son, the Bishop [of] Li[chfield], his wife and many of his friends, and said: 'Hear me, my friends, I desire that my wife hold this land which I bought from the church so long as she lives, and that after her death the church from which I received it should accept it back. Let whoever shall take it away from it be excommunicated'. The more important men of the whole County testify that this was so.

Urso also holds WITTON in Droitwich, and Gunfrid from him. The Church of Evesham held it before 1066. 1/2 hide. In lordship 1 plough; 2 slaves; 2 smallholders; 7 burgesses in Droitwich. 1 1/2 salt-houses which pay 30d. The value was 20s; now 15s. One Wulfgeat gave this land to the Church of Evesham. He placed his grant upon the altar when his son, Alfgeat, became a monk there. This was done in the fifth year of King Edward's reign. But later on Abbot Alwin leased this land to his [own] uncle for as long as the man should live. Later he died in [Earl] Harold's war against the Norsemen and the church recovered its land, before King William came to England. The Abbot held it as long as he lived, and his successor, Abbot Walter, likewise held it for more than 7 years.

HEREFORDSHIRE

List 1

[C] [HEREFORDSHIRE CUSTOMS]

HEF C1

In the City of HEREFORD before 1066 there were 103 men dwelling inside and outside the wall; they had the customs mentioned below.

HEF C2

If any of them wished to leave the City, he could sell his house with the reeve's consent to another man who was willing to perform the service owed from it, and the reeve had the third penny of this sale. But if anyone could not perform the service because of his poverty, he left his house without payment to the reeve who ensured that the house did not remain empty and that the King was not without service.

[Hereford]

HEF C3

Within the city wall every whole messuage paid 7 1/2d, and 4d for the hire of horses, and on three days in August reaped at Marden, and on one day had to gather hay where the sheriff wished. The owner of a horse went three times a year with the sheriff to [hear] pleas and to [meetings of] the Hundreds at Wormelow [Tump]. When the King was engaged in hunting, by custom one man from each and every house went to stall game in the woodland.

[Hereford]

HEF C4

Other men who did not have whole messuages provided escorts for the court when the King was in the City.

[Hereford]

HEF C5

When a burgess who served with his horse died, the King had his horse and arms. If a man who did not have a horse died, the King either had 10s from him or his land with its houses. If anyone had not bequeathed his possessions because of untimely death, the King had all his property.
[Hereford]

HEF C6

Those who lived in the City had these [same] customs, as did others likewise who lived outside the walls, except that a whole messuage outside the wall only gave 3 1/2d; the other customs were common [to both].
[Hereford]

HEF C7

Any man's wife who brewed ale inside or outside the City gave 10d as a customary due.
[Hereford]

HEF C8

There were six smiths in the City; each of them paid 1d from his forge and each of them made 120 horseshoes from the King's iron; for these each of them was given 3d by custom; these smiths were exempt from every other service.
[Hereford]

HEF C9

There were seven moneyers there. One of these was the Bishop's moneyer. When the coinage was renewed, each of them gave 18s for acquiring the dies, and after the day on which they returned, within one month, each of them gave 20s to the King, and the Bishop [of Hereford] likewise had 20s from his moneyer. When the King came to the City, the moneyers made him as many pence as he wanted, that is from the King's silver. These seven had their own full jurisdiction. When any moneyer of the King died, the King had 20s in death-duty. But if he died without bequeathing his wealth, the King had all his wealth.

[Hereford]

HEF C10

If the sheriff went into Wales with an army, these men went with him. But if anyone was ordered to go and did not go, he paid a fine of 40s to the King.
[Hereford]

HEF C11

In this City Earl Harold had 27 burgesses who had the same customs as the other burgesses.
[Hereford]

HEF C12

The reeve paid £12 from this City to King Edward and £6 to Earl Harold, and he had all the above customary dues in his revenue.
[Hereford]

HEF C13

The King had the three forfeitures in his lordship, that is breach of the peace, house-breaking and highway robbery. Anyone who committed one of these paid a fine of 100s to the King, no matter whose man he was.
[Hereford]

HEF C14

Now the King has the City of Hereford in lordship, and the English burgesses who live there have their former customs. But the French burgesses have all their forfeitures discharged for 12d, except the three above.

HEF C15

This City pays the King £60 of blanched pence at face value. Between the City and 18 manors which pay their revenues in Hereford, £335 18s are accounted for, besides [revenue from] the pleas of the Hundreds and the County [courts].

HEF A1

[In Archenfield]

In ARCHENFIELD the King has 3 churches. The priests of these churches bear the King's dispatches into Wales and each of them sings two masses each and every week for the King. If any one of them dies, the King has 20s from him by custom.

[[A] [Land of the King. King William holds it. King Edward held it. in Archenfield]]

HEF A2

If any Welshman steals a man, a woman, a horse, an ox or a cow, when he is convicted of it, he first restores what he stole, and gives 20s in forfeiture; but for stealing a sheep or a bundle of sheaves he pays a fine of 2s.

HEF A3

If anyone kills one of the King's men or commits house-breaking, he gives the King 20s as payment for the man and 100s in forfeiture. If anyone has killed athane's man, he gives 10s to the dead man's lord.

HEF A4

But if a Welshman has killed a Welshman, the relatives of the slain man gather and despoil the killer and his relatives and burn their houses until the body of the dead man is buried the next day about midday. The King has the third part of this plunder, but they have all the rest free.

[[A] [Land of the King. King William holds it. King Edward held it. in Archenfield]]

HEF A5

Otherwise, a man who has burnt a house and is accused of it, proves his innocence through 40 men; but if he has been unable to, he will pay a fine of 20s to the King.

[[A] [Land of the King. King William holds it. King Edward held it. in Archenfield]]

HEF A6

If anyone has concealed a sester of honey from the customary due and this is proved, he pays five [sesters] for one sester, if he holds as much land as ought to produce them.

[[A] [Land of the King. King William holds it. King Edward held it. in Archenfield]]

HEF A7

If the sheriff summons them to a meeting of the Shire, six or seven of the nobler ones of them go with him. A man who is called and does not go, gives 2s or 1 ox to the King; a man who stays away from the Hundred [meeting] pays as much.

[[A] [Land of the King. King William holds it. King Edward held it. in Archenfield]]

HEF A8

Anyone who does not go when ordered by the sheriff to go with him into Wales, is fined the same. But if the sheriff does not go, none of them goes.

[[A] [Land of the King. King William holds it. King Edward held it. in Archenfield]]

HUNTINGDONSHIRE

HUN B1

[HURSTINGSTONE' Hundred]

In the Borough of HUNTINGDON

there are four quarters. In two quarters there were 116 burgesses before 1066, and still are. They pay all customary dues and the King's tax. Under them are 100 smallholders who aid them in discharging the tax. St Benedict's of Ramsey had 10 of these burgesses with full jurisdiction and every customary due, but they only paid tax before 1066. Eustace [the sheriff] took them from the Abbey by force, and they are now in the King's hands, with the others.

HUN B2

Ulf Fenman had 18 burgesses. Now Gilbert of Ghent has them, with full jurisdiction, apart from the King's tax.

[Huntingdon]

HUN B3

The Abbot of Ely has one plot, with full jurisdiction, apart from the King's tax.

[Huntingdon]

HUN B4

The Bishop of Lincoln had one messuage, on the castle site, with full jurisdiction. It is not there now.

[Huntingdon]

HUN B5

Earl Siward had one messuage with a house, with full jurisdiction, exempt from every customary due. Now Countess Judith has it.

[Huntingdon]

HUN B6

On the castle site there were 20 messuages [liable] for all customary dues, which paid 16s 8d a year to the King's revenue.

They are not there now.
[Huntingdon]

HUN B7

Besides these there were and are 60 unoccupied messuages within these quarters which gave and give their customary dues.
[Huntingdon]

HUN B8

Besides these there are also 8 unoccupied messuages which before 1066 were fully occupied and gave all customary dues.
[Huntingdon]

HUN B9

In the other two quarters there were and are 140 burgesses [with as many houses], less 1/2 house, [liable] for all customary dues and for the King's tax. They had 80 closes, for which they gave and give all customary dues. Of these St Benedict's of Ramsey had 22 burgesses before 1066. Two of them were exempt from all customary dues; 30 paid 10d a year each. All other customary dues were the Abbot's, apart from the King's tax.
[Huntingdon]

HUN B10

In these quarters before 1066 Aelfric the sheriff had a messuage, which King William afterwards granted to his wife and sons. Eustace [the sheriff] now has it; an impoverished man, together with the mother, claims it.
[Huntingdon]

HUN B11

In these two quarters there were and are 44 unoccupied messuages which gave and give their customary dues.
[Huntingdon]

HUN B12

And besides these, also in these two quarters, Burgred [the priest] and Thorkil [the priest] had one church before 1066, with 2 hides of land and 22 burgesses, with [their] houses, who belong to this church, with full jurisdiction.
Eustace [the sheriff] now has them all; because of this these men claim the King's mercy.
Nevertheless these 22 burgesses give the King every customary due.
[Huntingdon]

HUN B13

Bishop Geoffrey [of Coutances] has 1 church and 1 house of the above, which Eustace [the sheriff] took away from St Benedict's [of Ramsey] and the same St [Benedict's] still claims them.
[Huntingdon]

HUN B14

In this Borough {Gos} and Hunef <of Stukeley> had 16 houses before 1066, with full jurisdiction and market rights. Countess Judith now has these.
[Huntingdon]

<203b>

HUN B15

The Borough of Huntingdon answered for 50 hides for the King's tax as a fourth part of `Hurstingstone' Hundred,. But it does not now pay such a tax in that Hundred, since King William placed a tax on the mint in the Borough.

HUN B16

From the whole of this Borough before 1066 £10 came from land tribute of which the Earl had the third part and the King two [parts].
Of this due 16s 8d, [shared] between the Earl and the King, now remain on the 20 messuages where the castle is.
[Huntingdon]

HUN B17

Besides these, from the Borough revenue the King had £20, and the Earl £10, more or less, according to how he could arrange his part.
One mill pays 40s to the King, 20s to the Earl.

[Huntingdon]

HUN B18

In this Borough lie 2 {{hides}} carucates and 40 acres of land, and 10 acres of meadow. They divide the revenue from these, the King [having] 2 parts and the Earl the third [part]. The burgesses cultivate this land and lease it through the officers of the King and the Earl. Within the said revenue are 3 fishermen who pay 3s.

[Huntingdon]

HUN B19

In this Borough were 3 moneyers who paid 40s, [shared] between the King and the Earl; but they are not there now.

[Huntingdon]

HUN B20

Before 1066 it paid £30; now the same.

[Huntingdon]

HUN B21

In `Hurstingstone' Hundred there are lordship ploughs exempt from the King's tax. The villagers and Freemen pay tax according to the hides entered in the record, apart from [in] Broughton, where the Abbot [of Ramsey] pays tax with the others for 1 hide.

[`HURSTINGSTONE' Hundred]

The men who have sworn in HUNTINGDON say that the Church of St Mary in the Borough and the land that belongs to it was the Church of Thorney's; but the Abbot gave it in pledge to the burgesses.

However, King Edward gave it to Vitalis and Bernard, his priests; they sold it to Hugh, King Edward's chamberlain.

But Hugh sold it to two priests of Huntingdon, for which they have King Edward's seal. Eustace [the sheriff] now has it without deliverer, without writ and without installer.

HUN D2

Eustace [the sheriff] took Leofeva's house by force and gave it to Oger of London.

HUN D3

They testify that the land of Hunef <of Stukeley> and {Gos} was in King Edward's hands on the day of his death, and that they held from him, not from the Earl [Waltheof]. But they say that they heard that King William should have given it to [Earl] Waltheof.

HUN D4

Concerning the 5 hides at BROUGHTON, they say that it was Freeman's land in King Edward's time, but that the same king gave the land and the jurisdiction over them to St Benedict's of Ramsey, because of a service which Abbot Alwin did for him in Saxony; and that since then [the Abbey] has always had it.

HUN D5

The County testifies that the land of Brictrmer Balehorn was reeveland before 1066 and belonged to the [Borough] revenue.

HUN D6

They testify that the land of Alwin the priest was the Abbot's; and that each was the priest's and the reeve's land [respectively].

HUN D7

[TOSELAND Hundred]

They testify that the lands of Aelfric [the sheriff] in YELLING and HEMINGFORD [Grey] were St Benedict's [of Ramsey]; and that they were granted to Aelfric for his lifetime on this condition that after his death they should have returned to the church, and Boxted with them. However Aelfric himself was killed in the battle at Hastings, and the Abbot recovered his lands, until Aubrey de Vere dispossessed him.

HUN D8

Concerning the 2 hides which Ralph son of Osmund holds in HEMINGFORD [Abbots], they say that one of them was [part] of the lordship of the Church of Ramsey in King Edward's day and that he holds it against the Abbot's will. Concerning the other hide, they say that Godric [the sheriff] held it from the Abbot, but when the Abbot was in Denmark, Ralph's father, Osmund, seized it from Saewin the falconer, to whom the Abbot had given it out of [his] love for the King.

HUN D9

Concerning Sumarlithi <of Waresley>, they say that he held his land [in Waresley] from Thorulf, who gave it to him, and afterwards from his sons, and that they had full jurisdiction over him.

HUN D10

They say that the land of Wulfwin {Chit} in [Hail] WESTON was a manor in its own right, and did not belong to Kimbolton; but that nevertheless he was Earl Harold's man.

<208b>

HUN D11

Concerning the 1 1/2 hides of land [in [Hail] WESTON] which were Algeat <of Weston>'s, the men who have sworn say that Algeat held them himself from Earl Tosti, with full jurisdiction, and afterwards from [Earl] Waltheof.

HUN D12

Godric the priest likewise held 1 hide of land [in Boughton] from Earl Waltheof before 1066. Now Eustace [the sheriff] holds it.

HUN D13

They say that the land of Godwin in [Hail] WESTON in no way belonged to Saxi, the predecessor of [Robert son of] Fafiton.

HUN D14

[`LEIGHTONSTONE' Hundred]

The men of the County testify that King Edward gave SWINESHEAD to Earl Siward [and] full jurisdiction, and so Earl Harold had it in the same way except that [its men] paid tax in the Hundred, and went with them against the enemy.

HUN D15

Concerning {Fursa}'s land [in Swineshead], it was a jurisdiction of the King.

HUN D16

Concerning Alwin Devil's 1 virgate of land in PERTENHALL, King Edward had the jurisdiction.

HUN D17

They say that the hide of land which Wulfwin {Chit} had in CATWORTH was in the King's jurisdiction and that Earl

Harold did not have it.

HUN D18

In LITTLE CATWORTH the same Wulfwin [{Chit}] had 1 hide over which King Edward always had full jurisdiction; but he could give and sell the land to whom he would. But the Countess [Judith]'s men say that the King gave the land to Earl Waltheof.

HUN D19

The County testifies that the third part of 1/2 hide which lies in EASTON and pays tax in Bedfordshire belongs to the Abbot of Ely's manor of Spaldwick. The Abbot had it in the same way before 1066 and for 5 years after the arrival of King William. Eustace [the sheriff] seized this [land] by force from the church and kept it.

HUN D20

They say that KEYSTON was and is [part] of King Edward's revenue; and although Aelfric the sheriff resided in that village, yet he always paid the King's revenue from it, and his sons after him, until Eustace [the sheriff] received the sheriffdom; they have never seen or heard of the sealed [writ] of r King Edward which had put it outside his revenue.

HUN D21

Alwold and his brothers claim that Eustace [the sheriff] unjustly took away from them their land [in [Great] GIDDING]. The County denies that they have seen the seal, or an installer who had put him in possession of it.

HUN D22

In 1066 [Great] GIDDING was an outlier of Alconbury, in the King's revenue.

HUN D23

The County testifies that BUCKWORTH was an outlier of [Great] Paxton before 1066.

HUN D24

They say that the 36 hides of land in BRAMPTON, which Richard the artificer claims belong to the Forest, were [part] of the King's lordship revenue, and did not belong to the Forest.

HUN D25

They say that GRAFHAM was and is a jurisdiction of the King's and that they have seen neither writ nor installer who had delivered it to Eustace [the sheriff].

HUN D26

[NORMANCROSS Hundred]

Concerning the 6 hides in CONINGTON, they said that they had heard <208c>

that they formerly lay in [the lands] of the Church of Thorney and that they had been granted to Thorkil [the Dane] on this condition that after his death they should return to the church with the other 3 hides of the same village. They said that they had heard but had not seen this, nor had they been involved in it.

HUN D27

Concerning the land of Tosti [brother of Erik] in SAWTRY, they say that his brother Erik [brother of Tosti] bequeathed it by name to the Church of Ramsey after the death of himself, his brother and his sister.

HUN D28

Concerning [Old] FLETTON, they say that in King Edward's day it all lay in [the lands of] the Church of Peterborough, and ought to lie [there].

HUN D29

Concerning Leofric's land [in ORTON [Waterville]], they say that it was in the King's jurisdiction, but Bishop Remigius has shown the writ of King Edward by which he gave Leofric, with all [his] land, to the Bishopric of Lincoln, with full jurisdiction.

BEDFORDSHIRE

BDF B1

[In 'BUCKELOWE' Hundred]

BEDFORD answered for a half Hundred before 1066, and does so now, in [military] expeditions, [by land] and in ships. The land of this town was never assessed in hides and is not now, except for 1 hide, which lay in [the lands of] St Paul's Church before 1066, in alms, and now rightly so lies. But Bishop Remigius wrongfully placed it outside the alms [lands] of St Paul's Church, as the men [of the Shire] state. He holds it now, and whatever belongs to it. Value 100s.
